PRESIDENTIAL FIGHT IS WARM

Bigelow and Norris Each Claim Sufficient Votes to Elect on First Ballot—Farmers Hold Caucus and Take Stand Against Proposition For Presiding Officer to Name Committees—Taken as Hopeful Sign by Adherents of Marion Man.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Delegates to the Ohio constitutional convention assembled in the hall of the house of representatives at 10 o'clock this morning and started the work of the preliminary organization. The meeting was called to order by Judge Dennis Dwyer of Dayton, the temporary presiding officer of the convention. The delegates filed their certificates of election, after which the convention began the task of selecting a permanent presiding officer or president, and a secretary, the latter to be chosen from outside the list of delegates.

Judge Norris and Rev. Bigelow, leading candidates for the presidency of the convention are both claiming victory. In spite of Bigelow's final claim of 68 assured votes on the first ballot and Judge Norris' claim of 60, sufficient number, there is no proof that either of these candidates has enough to elect.

Farmer delegates caucused and took a decided stand against the appointment of the convention committee by the president. This action gave Judge Caleb H. Norris of Marion an opportunity to launch his attack on Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati, as being inconsistent in posing as a progressive leader and yet proposing to be a Joe Cannon star should he be elected president of the convention.

J. W. Winn of Defiance made the speech presenting the name of Norris to the convention.

For the clerkship the candidates are: Former State Librarian Charles B. Gilbreath of Columbiana county; Former State Senator Edward Gillette of Fairfield county; W. E. Pollock of Cuyahoga county, and Hal Jordan D. Banks of Cuyahoga county.

BRYAN AND WILSON CONFER

Governor of New Jersey and Nebraskan Create Merriment Among the Speakers and Guests by Unexpected Display of Friendship—Orators Make No Startling Contributions to Contemporaneous Politics, Bryan's Remarks Being Very Pacific.

Washington, Jan. 9.—William Jennings Bryan and Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey met at the Jackson day dinner here, and if there is any hard feeling between them as a result of the publication of the latter's letter expressing a desire to see the Nebraskan "knocked into a cocked hat" there was no evidence apparent at the banquet. When Mr. Bryan entered the banquet hall amid a lively round of cheers, all the other guests at the speakers' table were at their places with the exception of William R. Hearst, who did not get around for an hour or so. The Nebraskan went down the line shaking hands with everyone. When he came to Governor Wilson he put out his hand and the two exchanged what appeared to be a very cordial grip. After Mr. Bryan had completed the rounds he returned to Mr. Wilson's side, and for 15 minutes before they took their seats he and the New Jersey aspirant had their heads together in a confidential and seemingly harmonious chat.

Roosevelt Is Scored.

The meeting fairly dripped harmony. There were no startling contributions to contemporaneous political history, no personal grievances were aired and no old feuds rubbed up to look like new. It is true that Senator Kern and Mr. Hearst added considerable to the gaiety of the evening by participating in that now popular amusement of jumping up and down on Colonel Roosevelt, but this appeared to be so thoroughly in accord with the spirit of the evening that their remarks along this line were most enthusiastically received.

Mr. Bryan's remarks were particularly pacific. In fact he, in common with the rest, seemed to go out of the way to dodge any chance of starting an argument or stepping on somebody's toes, or of giving offense to any faction of the party. He was down to speak on "The Passing of Plutocracy." He congratulated the party on its progressive principles, on its achievements in the past and on the glorious prospects that loom in the future.

Governor Wilson, as did practically all of the other speakers, emphasized the importance of the tariff issue, and elaborated his oft-expressed views on the necessity of divorcing business from politics.

Senator O'Gorman in his brief remarks before he set in motion the speaking program gave a running review of the crimes of the Republican party during its years of power.

National Committee Refuses to Unseat His Old Enemy.

Washington, Jan. 9.—In two test cases, forced by himself, one in Alabama and one in Pennsylvania, William Jennings Bryan was overwhelmingly defeated at the meeting of the Democratic national committee. In both cases Bryan bolted the cardinal doctrine of his party, incorporated into its government by himself in the Democratic national convention of 1908. At that convention Bryan commanded his friends in the Denver convention to adopt a resolution by which Democratic state committees were given authority to fill

Washington, Jan. 9.—Philip S. Hichborn, son of the late Admiral Hichborn, filed suit for an absolute divorce from his wife, Eleanor M. Hichborn, who is a daughter of the late Solicitor General Henry M. Hoyt. Horace Wylie, a son of the late Justice Wylie of the District of Columbia, a wealthy society man and clubman, is named as co-respondent. In his petition Mr. Hichborn says in part:

"It is now a matter notoriously apparent that the said defendant and co-respondent eloped together and traveled and consorted together at New York, Quebec, Liverpool, London, Paris, Toulon, Montreal and other places, and that no contradiction has been attempted from any source."

Newark, O., Jan. 9.—Six men were badly stunned at the plant of Lynn Wilson by an explosion of dynamite. They had tied a small stick of dynamite to the tail of a strange dog and took to their heels after lighting the fuse. The dog, being playful, persisted in following his tormentors.

The men ran into an old building used to store street grading implements. The dog followed. He found an opening in the wall large enough to enter and was about half way in when the dynamite let go. Parts of the animal were blown inside and parts outside the building, and every one of the six men was badly stunned by the force of the explosion.

Many Ships Ashore.

Brest, Jan. 9.—A gale is raging here and it is feared that shipping has suffered greatly. Lifeboats bearing the following names of ships have been cast ashore: Tokio of Hull, Langham of Sunderland, Manhielm of Hamburg, Frey of Thuro, Creole Prince of Newcastle, Hugheden of Sunderland and the Elder and Bal-laura of Glasgow.

PROFESSOR HERSCHEL C. PARKER, the man who accused Dr. Cook of falsely asserting that he had climbed the highest summit of Mount McKinley, is himself making another attempt this winter to scale that hitherto inaccessible peak. His wife, who is an expert mountain climber, wished to accompany him, but Professor Parker thought that his undertaking was too dangerous for a woman. His party consists of himself, Belmore Brown, artist, writer and explorer, who was with him on two earlier expeditions, and two young Alaskans. They will carry about 1,800 pounds of provisions and outfit on two dog sleds, starting from Stewart, Alaska. The sled journey will be at least 750 miles. The illustrations show Professor Parker and his wife and a distant view of the mountain he hopes to conquer.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson did not appear in court for the purpose of changing his plea to one of guilty on the indictment which charges him with the murder of Miss Avis Linnell. Proceedings were postponed until this afternoon at the request of counsel for the accused clergyman, because of the illness of William A. Morse, one of the lawyers who is most active in the case for the defense.

There is hardly any question now but that all efforts to save Richeson from the electric chair, after he pleads guilty, will be along the lines of insanity. Mr. Lee said that the defense will base appeal to Governor Foss for clemency on the ground that the clergyman is insane. The governor has announced that he will entertain a plea from Richeson's lawyers and place it before the executive council.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 9.—Ten battleships and cruisers are strewn out over the Atlantic ocean seeking some trace of the torpedo boat Mayrant, which navy officers fear may have foundered during the terrible gale that swept the coast and damaged a half dozen ships of the Atlantic fleet. The battleships Connecticut, Louisiana, Ohio and the cruisers Birmingham and Washington are scouring the seas in search of the missing craft, and their wireless appeals to other ships were heard and answered by a dozen liners. Not one of the vessels answering the calls, however, had seen anything of the Mayrant.

The torpedo boats Drayton and McCall, which were not accounted for, are reported to have gone ashore near Bermuda. Naval officials, while not certain that the Drayton and McCall are the two torpedo boats reported ashore near Bermuda, declare that they have fears only for the Mayrant.

The battleship Louisiana heard the faint calls of a torpedo boat for help. Her wireless appeals were very weak and it was nearly half an hour before the operator on the battleship could distinguish the message and the name of the boat sending it. The call, however, was from the torpedo boat Roe, which, like her sister ship, the Perry, had been disabled by the storm and was without fuel. The Roe's wireless was damaged by the storm and she was able to transmit her appeals for help only a distance of seven miles.

The president has considered the protests sent in and does not regard them as affording any good reason why Judge Hook should not be appointed.

Washington, Jan. 9.—That his chance meeting with Colonel William J. Bryan at the Union station concerned the formation of a third party by the coalition of progressive Republicans and Democrats, was ridiculed by Senator LaFollette.

London, Jan. 9.—Russia's designs on Mongolia, though long foreseen, have taken concrete shape somewhat sooner than was expected here. The notice which she has served upon the government at Peking is regarded here as equivalent to the annexation of a million square miles of China's largest dependency. Nobody doubts, however, that a way will be found sooner or later to remove the last vestige of China's control.

New Holland Bank Case Ended After Many Years

Famous Embezzlement Case Recalled by End of Long Legal Battle---Depositors Get Sixty Cents on the Dollar.

In August, 1904, the Union Banking Co., of New Holland, which was organized under the state banking law with a capital of $25,000, closed its doors and its cashier, T. K. Brown who absconded, was thereafter arrested, convicted and sent to the Ohio penitentiary. The liabilities greatly exceeded the assets and the capital stock and the depositors only received about fifty cents on the dollar of their claims from the assets.

A suit was brought against the stockholders to recover on their double liability, which allowed something additional to depositors. In December, 1904, a suit was brought in the Common Pleas court of Pickaway county by a large number of the depositors on behalf of the bank, against the directors, seeking to recover $70,000 damages which the plaintiffs claimed the bank had suffered by reason of the alleged negligent conduct of the directors in failing to properly look after the affairs of the bank and in permitting the cashier to embezzle its funds.

The suit has been pending ever since and has been heard on various motions and demurrers and the pleadings in the case have several times been amended and recast. The defendant directors were Scott Beatty, of this county; Grant Campbell, Thomas M. Withgott, Milton Bennett and Thomas C. Gooley, of New Holland, and Charles H. May and William E. Morris, of Circleville.

Saturday final disposition was made of the case at Circleville by an entry of judgment in favor of the Union Banking Co. against the defendant directors in the sum of $19,000, which judgment was immediately paid to I. N. Abernethy who was appointed by the court as receiver to collect and distribute the same, and an entry of satisfaction of the judgment put on record. The judgment was paid in the following proportions as shown by the record: Scott Beatty, $5,000; T. C. Gooley, $1,000; Charles H. May, $1,000; Milton Bennett, $1,000; Thomas M. Withgott, $1,000; and Grant Campbell, $1,000.

The court allowed Abernethy & Fulson, attorneys for the plaintiffs, a fee of $2,000, to be paid out of the fund and directed that the remainder of the fund, $8,000, be distributed pro rata among all the creditors of the Union Banking Company. It is understood this distribution will be made to the creditors of the bank at once. It is also thought that this brings to a final close the long entangled affairs of the defunct bank and that the total amount paid creditors, including this $10,000, will equal about sixty cents on the dollar of the proven claims against the bank.

Mr. Humphrey Jones of this city represented Mr. Scott Beatty in the litigation and Hon. Mills Gardner of this city, Judge Clarence Curtin, Judge Charles Dresbach and Milton Morris, of Circleville, at various times represented other defendants in the case.

Eames-Gogorza Columbus Concert

The seat sale for the Eames-Gogorza concert to be held in Columbus next Monday evening will open Wednesday morning at the Wilkin-Redman music store in Columbus, and from present appearances one of the record-breaking audiences of the season will be at Memorial hall to hear these great stars in joint concert. Word has been received from by birth, a member of the noble Castilian Ohio that theater parties will be in for the evening and several of these have already reserved seats in blocks, in order to make sure of enjoying the concert among friends.

This concert by two of the greatest singers in the musical world today will undoubtedly be the big event of the year in Columbus, insofar as entertainments of that kind are concerned. Mme. Eames occupies an enviable and commanding position as among the greatest American prima donnas, which position she has held since the age of 20 years, when she was recognized as being selected by the great Gounod himself, to appear as "Juliet" in his setting of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy which now holds its place as among the greatest of musical works. She was the first American singer to receive recognition in an operatic way from any European country. She has sung nearly every important role in grand opera, making a repertoire which is almost endless. Sig. Gogorza is a Spaniard by birth, a number of the noble Castilian family of Navarrette. He holds a position as the foremost living baritone.

The marriage of Eames and Gogorza last July has made it possible for the manager to procure them for a joint concert, and not since the notable tour of Teresa Correno and Eugene d'Albert have any singers so charmed as have Eames and Gogorza on this, their honeymoon tour. Prices for the concert to hear both of these stars in solo and duet, will not be raised above the prices which have been charged for hearing the singers separately. Seats may be procured at from $1.00 to $2.00 and mail orders will receive prompt attention.

Some two months ago a man named Harry Blessing was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years for forgery, being sent from Springfield or Dayton, where the offense had been committed. It was claimed that he was the same man who formerly lived in this county.

A cousin of the Harry Blessing who was a former resident of this city states that the Blessing sent to prison was another, and not the one who lived here, and further states that he is now working on the C. H. & D. railroad between Cincinnati and Lima, Ohio, and that he saw him at Sidney, Ohio, on January 3rd, and had a talk with him, learning that it was the other man of like name who was sent to the state prison.

New Holland Bank Case Ended After Many Years

Famous Embezzlement Case Recalled by End of Long Legal Battle---Depositors Get Sixty Cents on the Dollar.

In August, 1904, the Union Banking Co., of New Holland, which was organized under the state banking law with a capital of $25,000, closed its doors and its cashier, T. K. Brown who absconded, was thereafter arrested, convicted and sent to the Ohio penitentiary. The liabilities greatly exceeded the assets and the capital stock and the depositors only received about fifty cents on the dollar of their claims from the assets.

A suit was brought against the stockholders to recover on their double liability, which allowed something additional to depositors. In December, 1904, a suit was brought in the Common Pleas court of Pickaway county by a large number of the depositors on behalf of the bank, against the directors, seeking to recover $70,000 damages, which the plaintiffs claimed the bank had suffered by reason of the alleged negligent conduct of the directors in failing to properly look after the affairs of the bank and in permitting the cashier to embezzle its funds.

The suit has been pending ever since and has been heard on various motions and demurrers and the pleadings in the case have several times been amended and recast. The defendant directors were Scott Beatty, of this county; Grant Campbell, Thomas M. Withgott, Milton Bennett and Thomas C. Gooley, of New Holland, and Charles H. May and William E. Morris, of Circleville.

Saturday final disposition was made of the case at Circleville by an entry of judgment in favor of the Union Banking Co. against the defendant directors in the sum of $10,000, which judgment was immediately paid to I. N. Abernethy who was appointed by the court as receiver to collect and distribute the same, and an entry of satisfaction of the judgment put on record. The judgment was paid in the following proportions as shown by the record: Scott Beatty, $5,000; T. C. Gooley, $1000; Charles H. May, $1000; Milton Bennett, $1000; Thomas M. Withgott, $1000; and Grant Campbell, $1000.

The court allowed Abernethy & Fulson, attorneys for the plaintiffs, a fee of $2000, to be paid out of the fund and directed that the remainder of the fund, $8000, be distributed pro rata among all the creditors of the Union Banking Company. It is understood this distribution will be made to the creditors of the bank at once. It is also thought that this brings to a final close the long entangled affairs of the defunct bank and that the total amount paid creditors, including this $10,000, will equal about sixty cents on the dollar of the proven claims against the bank.

Mr. Humphrey Jones of this city represented Mr. Scott Beatty in the litigation and Hon. Mills Gardner of this city, Judge Clarence Curtin, Judge Charles Dresbach and Milton Morris, of Circleville, at various times represented other defendants in the case.

Eames-Gogorza Columbus Concert

The seat sale for the Eames-Gogorza concert to be held in Columbus next Monday evening will open Wednesday morning at the Wilkin-Redman music store in Columbus, and from present appearances one of the record-breaking audiences of the season will be at Memorial hall to hear these great stars in joint concert. Word has been received from by birth, a member of the noble Castilian Ohio that theater parties will be in for the evening and several of these have already reserved seats in blocks, in order to make sure of enjoying the concert among friends.

This concert by two of the greatest singers in the musical world today will undoubtedly be the big event of the year in Columbus, insofar as entertainments of that kind are concerned. Mme. Eames occupies an enviable and commanding position as among the greatest American prima donnas, which position she has held since the age of 20 years, when she was recognized as being selected by the great Gounod himself, to appear as "Juliet" in his setting of Shakespeare's immortal tragedy which now holds its place as among the greatest of musical works. She was the first American singer to receive recognition in an operatic way from any European country. She has sung nearly every important role in grand opera, making a repertoire which is almost endless. Sig. Gogorza is a Spaniard by birth, a number of the noble Castilian family of Navarrete. He holds a position as the foremost living baritone.

The marriage of Eames and Gogorza last July has made it possible for the manager to procure them for a joint concert, and not since the notable tour of Teresa Correno and Eugene d'Albert have any singers so charmed as have Eames and Gogorza on this, their honeymoon tour. Prices for the concert to hear both of these stars in solo and duet, will not be raised above the prices which have been charged for hearing the singers separately. Seats may be procured at from $1.00 to $2.00 and mail orders will receive prompt attention.

Fresh supply Mrs. Austin's Bag Buckwheat now on hand at your grocers.

It Was Blessing The Wrong One

Some two months ago a man named Harry Blessing was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years for forgery, being sent from Springfield or Dayton, where the offense had been committed. It was claimed that he was the same man who formerly lived in this county.

A cousin of the Harry Blessing who was a former resident of this city states that the Blessing sent to prison was another, and not the one who lived here, and further states that he is now working on the C. H. & D. railroad between Cincinnati and Lima, Ohio, and that he saw him at Sidney, Ohio, on January 3rd, and had a talk with him, learning that it was the other man of like name who was sent to the state prison.

Tomorrow is the last discount day

Humphreys Fined Compelled to Leave Never to Return

Monday evening William Humphreys was taken before Mayor Smith, who fined him $50 and the costs and gave him thirty days in the Columbus workhouse for his part in the trouble Sunday night in which he stopped two bullets from a revolver in the hands of William McKitterick. The fine and sentence were suspended providing Humphreys left the city and state and never return. This he readily agreed to do, being greatly relieved that he could make such arrangements. He was accordingly locked up in the county jail until the west-bound B. & O. train arrived when he was placed upon it and sent to Cincinnati, and from thence he was to go to Missouri where he has relatives living.

Late Monday the man submitted to having his wounds dressed by a physician, and owing to lack of attention the wounds were somewhat inflamed, but his condition was not considered serious.

Humphreys' career has been a badly checkered one, and for a long time the McKittericks have been living in fear of their lives, well knowing the disposition of the man. Upon a number of occasions Humphreys has been in serious trouble in this city and county. Near Jeffersonville some time ago he attacked a fellow employee with a pitchfork, and would have killed him had not the man escaped by taking to his heels.

McKitterick has not been molested, his statement that he shot in self-defense being accepted literally.

IS YOUR SKIN ON FIRE?

Here is a Reliable Healing Application for Eczema.

Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

"If I could only get relief from this terrible itching, I would give anything," said an eczema sufferer the other day.

It is very easy for us to advise in such matters now, for our new remedy (Saxon Salve) for skin diseases of all sorts, stops the itching right away.

But better than that it makes the skin healthy again. It is made so as to penetrate right into the skin and saturate every portion with its healing, germ-destroying power.

Even in a few days you can see that Saxon Salve is soon going to clear away the eruption.

No other skin remedy can do so much for you as Saxon Salve. It is guaranteed—if it does not satisfy you when used for any skin disorder we give back your money. Blackmer & Tanquary, Druggists, Washington, C. H., Ohio.

More Cold Weather 'And First Sleighting

The first sleighting of the season occurred Monday night and Tuesday, although the storm and extreme cold prevented many from venturing forth to enjoy the sport.

The thermometer took a drop of from 32 degrees at 3 p. m. Monday to the zero mark, and even below Tuesday morning. Some places the cold was so intense that the mercury recorded five and eight below Tuesday morning, although the self-registering thermometer at Gossard's corner recorded one and two degrees above at an early hour Tuesday.

Humphreys Fined Compelled to Leave Never to Return

Monday evening William Humphreys was taken before Mayor Smith, who fined him $50 and the costs and gave him thirty days in the Columbus workhouse for his part in the trouble Sunday night in which he stopped two bullets from a revolver in the hands of William McKitterick.

The fine and sentence were suspended providing Humphreys left the city and state and never return. This he readily agreed to do, being greatly relieved that he could make such arrangements. He was accordingly locked up in the county jail until the west-bound B. & O. train arrived when he was placed upon it and sent to Cincinnati, and from thence he was to go to Missouri where he has relatives living.

Late Monday the man submitted to having his wounds dressed by a physician, and owing to lack of attention the wounds were somewhat inflamed, but his condition was not considered serious.

Humphreys' career has been a badly checkered one, and for a long time the McKittericks have been living in fear of their lives, well knowing the disposition of the man. Upon a number of occasions Humphreys has been in serious trouble in this city and county. Near Jeffersonville some time ago he attacked a fellow employee with a pitchfork, and would have killed him had not the man escaped by taking to his heels.

McKitterick has not been molested, his statement that he shot in self-defense being accepted literally.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

The Constitutional convention, so much talked of and so much written about, and so much speculated about, during the past year, is at hand.

The one hundred and nineteen delegates have been coming into Columbus since Saturday by the various loads which lead to the Capital of the state, and today the convention is formally and officially at work.

Some of the delegates have very pronounced views about what should be done with the constitution which has served the people of Ohio so long and proven, under the many and varied conditions which have arisen in that long span of years so sufficient for all our needs.

Others of the delegates have a great many pronounced ideas about very materially changing the old document, the wholesome reservations in which have been the anchor post beyond which those who would rule instead of serve the people could not go.

The general opinion throughout the state is that the personnel of the convention is good and that while there may be among the delegates those who believe to be progressive it is necessary to embrace every ism as it comes along, yet there is an abundance of hardy men there who fully realize the danger of trying any experiments in the fundamental law of the state.

The gravest danger apprehended so far by those who have studied the situation as it exists—the constitution as it stands, the changes of minor consequences which could be made advantageously, the army of wild-eyed, strong lunged, one idea cranks who will lay siege to the convention in the hope of putting through their particular whim, is that the convention may be loaded down with a mass of worthless or dangerous propositions, and the work of shoveling out the waste material may consume time which should be devoted to real business.

It is generally believed too, that the convention will adopt the wise course and dispose of the contentious pro and con on the liquor question first thing.

Then other questions of importance can be discussed free of the ever present and befogging and harmful "wet and dry" charges.

The constitution of the state should permit all reasonable advance in the way of legislation which may be demanded by the changing conditions of an enlightened progressive and prosperous people, but it should not be disgraced by freak ideas which have no place in practical life for centuries to come.

Well as they say at the race course "they're off" and the people will soon see just what is to be done by the long awaited gathering.

One Hundred Miles an Hour In an Aeroplane

By WALTER BROOKINS, Aviator

AEROPLANES VERY SOON WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE FROM NINETY TO A HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR, WHERE THEY NOW MAKE FROM FIFTY TO SIXTY MILES. THEY WILL BE ABLE TO MAKE LONG VOYAGES OVER SEAS, TO ALIGHT IN THE OCEAN, START AGAIN FROM THE WATER AND "TRIM SAIL" AFLOAT IN THE AIR.

We need aeroplanes that can stay aloft at twenty miles an hour and under, and if we get them in a condition to do that and then can reef in the sail spread after we get up we can send them to ONE HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR on the present engine development. A single aeroplane capable of running at twenty and then at one hundred miles an hour—how would that be for a development? Wouldn't it make the automobile look sick?

The railroad train doesn't haul the load of the steamship. Yet as between steamships and railroads we prefer the latter where speed is requisite. We are now facing a chance to go between fixed points at from SEVENTY-FIVE TO ONE HUNDRED MILES AN HOUR OVER THE SHORTEST POSSIBLE ROUTE, and we must not belittle the aeroplane's capacity.

When we can see these things ahead of us it amazes us.

THE HOUSE OF LIFE.

Their House of Life, as if a wizard's wand
Had dreamed such majesty, stood wondrous fair;
Gables and pinnacles that wooed the air,
Facades, roofs, cornices and porches grand;
Within glowed all the luxury of the land
On floor and ceiling, wall, resplendent stair,
In spacious rooms replete with treasures rare—
All wealth could wish these dwellers had at hand.

And many a year they dwelt in pride and fame,
Nor heeded wisdom, caught as in a spell,
Dreaming Dame Fortune listed their command.

Behold, the rains descended, the floods came
And beat upon the house, and lo! it fell;
For all its pride was built upon the sand.

A GIRL'S WILD MIDNIGHT RIDE.

To warn people of a fearful forest fire in the Catskills a young girl rode horseback at midnight and saved many lives. Her deed was glorious but lives are often saved by Dr. King's New Discovery in curing lung trouble, coughs and colds, which might have ended in consumption or pneumonia. "It cured me of a dreadful cough and lung disease," writes W. R. Patterson, Wellington, Tex., "after four in our family had died with consumption, and I gained 87 pounds." ## TWO WAYS TO GET WELL IF YOU ARE NERVOUS, DEBILITATED AND RUN-DOWN

EITHER THE REST CURE OR TONA VITA WILL BUILD YOU UP AGAIN.

If you are nervous, debilitated, and run-down in health, there are two things you can do to bring back your strength and vitality. You can go to a sanitarium and take the rest cure or you can secure the great modern tonic "Tona Vita", and let it build you up and furnish new nourishment for your shattered nerves. Either the sanitarium or "Tona Vita" will conquer the modern ailment, nervous debility, but it costs at least one hundred times as much to take the rest cure as to take a bottle of tonic.

If you knew what wonderful results have been accomplished by "Tona Vita" since physicians first introduced it in this country you would much rather take this tonic than to go to any sanitarium on earth. Here is a statement from Mr. J. B. House, of 381 Twentieth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., who has tried Tona Vita. "For the past several years I have not enjoyed good health. I was all run down, intensely nervous and suffered with the most violent headaches. I felt tired and dull all day, my body seemed benumbed at times, and I did not sleep well. My digestion was imperfect and I was continually constipated. As soon as I ate anything my stomach would fill with gas and I would be distressed for a half hour or more. My mind was dull and my memory very poor. I contracted a cold very easily and suffered with severe coughs. Sometime ago I talked with a physician who advised me to take 'Tona Vita'. I did it and am glad I did for the medicine was wonderful in my case. I feel as though I had a new lease on life. My ambition has returned as well as my strength and energy.

"I now sleep well and get up in the morning feeling cheerful and ready for work.

"My wife was also run down and in poor health. She started taking the medicine when it began to help me. Her improvement has been the same and she is now in good health."

If you are run down and haven't enough strength it is your own fault if you feel miserable a day longer, when you can get such a preparation as "Tona Vita."

"Lee's Rhubarb Laxative should be taken also in cases where constipation exists. It is used as an assistant remedy and is a fine family laxative containing the splendid medicinal qualities of Rhubarb. It is the best possible laxative for children as Rhubarb is a tonic for the intestinal tract and does not strain or weaken the bowels like other drugs. It is pleasant to take. Brown's Drug Store, Court and Fayette streets, is agent for Tona Vita and Lee's Rhubarb Laxative in Washington, C. H., and will refund the purchase price if they are not entirely satisfactory. ## TWO WAYS TO GET WELL IF YOU ARE NERVOUS, DEBILITATED AND RUN-DOWN

EITHER THE BEST CURE OR TONA VITA WILL BUILD YOU UP AGAIN.

If you are nervous, debilitated, and run-down in health, there are two things you can do to bring back your strength and vitality. You can go to a sanitarium and take the rest cure or you can secure the great modern tonic "Tona Vita", and let it build you up and furnish new nourishment for your shattered nerves. Either the sanitarium or "Tona Vita" will conquer the modern ailment, nervous debility, but it costs at least one hundred times as much to take the rest cure as to take a bottle of tonic.

If you knew what wonderful results have been accomplished by "Tona Vita" since physicians first introduced it in this country you would much rather take this tonic than to go to any sanitarium on earth. Here is a statement from Mr. J. B. House, of 381 Twentieth Ave., Milwaukee, Wis., who has tried Tona Vita. "For the past several years I have not enjoyed good health. I was all run down, intensely nervous and suffered with the most violent headaches. I felt tired and dull all day, my body seemed benumbed at times, and I did not sleep well. My digestion was imperfect and I was continually constipated. As soon as I ate anything my stomach would fill with gas and I would be distressed for a half hour or more. My mind was dull and my memory very poor. I contracted a cold very easily and suffered with severe coughs. Sometime ago I talked with a physician who advised me to take "Tona Vita". I did it and am glad I did for the medicine was wonderful in my case. I feel as though I had a new lease on life. My ambition has returned as well as my strength and energy.

"I now sleep well and get up in the morning feeling cheerful and ready for work.

"My wife was also run down and in poor health. She started taking the medicine when it began to help me. Her improvement has been the same and she is now in good health."

If you are run down and haven't enough strength it is your own fault if you feel miserable a day longer, when you can get such a preparation
as "Tona Vita."

"Lee's Rhubarb Laxative should be taken also in cases where constipation exists. It is used as an assistant remedy and is a fine family laxative containing the splendid medicinal qualities of Rhubarb. It is the best possible laxative for children as Rhubarb is a tonic for the intestinal tract and does not strain or weaken the bowels like other drugs. It is pleasant to take.
Brown's Drug Store, Court and Fa-rette streets, is agent for Tona Vita and Lee's Rhubarb Laxative in Washington C. H., and will refund the purchase price if they are not entirely satisfactory. The Approved Formula Company, Dayton, Ohio.

IT OVERLOOKS PUGET SOUND

Hermit Castle a Unique Building Erected Many Years Ago by an Eccentric Englishman.

Port Townsend, Wash.—On the summit of a high hill back of Port Townsend, the state's port of entry, and overlooking the town, stands a unique building, much resembling a castle. In the early days, when there were no neighboring residences, the structure often underwent searching scrutiny by eyes aboard ship peering through binoculars or field glass, as it does to this day, when some shap-visioned tourist picks it out as something distinct from the ordinary type of building.

The "castle," as the structure is called by the people of the town, was built many years ago, in boom times, by an eccentric Englishman, who through his habits and eccentricities was known as a hermit.

There are, perhaps, few building locations in the United States affording views as grand as the one where this freak in architecture stands. It stands nearly 300 feet above sea level, immediately overlooking a beautiful little bay with numerous inlets, and beyond great stretches of America's fringed and greatest inland waterway, Puget sound. In the distance are the green foothills, and beyond the majestic Olympic range, snow-capped the year 'round, and behind which old Sol sinks from sight amid a wealth of color month in and out.

The Hermit Castle.

After the old Englishman's death, "the castle" passed to the United States, acquired by purchase of land for use as a military reservation. The building is of brick, and is substantially built and well finished within.

BIG ROCKY MOUNTAIN GORGE

Grand Canyon of the Arkansas River One of the Most Spectacular in the West.

Denver, Colo.—The Grand Canyon of the Arkansas is one of the most spectacular gorges in the Rocky mountains. It is ten miles long and the railroad—the Denver and Rio Grande—by a marvel of engineering skill has made it a thoroughfare to the west.

The narrowest part of the canyon is known as the Royal Gorge. The red granite and gneiss walls, sparkling with mica, tower aloft on either hand 2,627 feet; the sky is a thread, almost obliterated by the jagged ramparts, and the stars may be seen at midday.

At one point, the hanging bridge, the width is but ten yards, and the road-bed has been built out over the water. The river boils madly through; the engine sways now to the right, now to the left, dragging the train; the vista ahead, momentarily blocked, opens again; a way is always found.

Grand Canyon of the Arkansas.

And ever there is the ruddy granite, in walls and in huge broken masses, and the green stream foaming against its boulders, and glimpses of side canyons wooded and mysterious.

Bands of mountain sheep are seen almost daily on the high cliffs as the trains climb the backbone of the continent.

Lights on Baby Carts.

St. Paul.—Baby carriages in Minnesota must hereafter carry warning lights when used after dark—two white lights in front and a red one at the rear. It's all due to a mistake, a kind of "joker" that somehow got in the new law just passed by the legislature, but it "goes," according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Simpson.

Children's velocipedes, wheelbarrows and kiddies' express wagons are also included in the provisions of the law, which really was intended only to help automobilists and motorcyclists, by compelling horse-drawn vehicles to carry lights. But the language was clumsily put: "the other users of wheeled vehicles."

TRAIN KAISER'S SONS

Not an Easy Task, Says an American Boxer.

Jack Slim Relates Some of His Experiences at Potsdam—Prince Oscar is Sturdy Fellow, Weighing 165 Pounds.

Jack Slim, the Anglo-American boxer who is training the kaiser's younger sons in the noble art of self-defense, has no easy job of it.

"They are very good to me at Potsdam, and the young princes are pretty good natured. Still, it is not all beer and skittles," said Slim. "For example, the kaiserin is too good a mother not to have a few qualms about her sons indulging in a sport, which, though useful enough, is not very popular in Germany and meets with a good deal of prejudice among army officers."

"The kaiserin watched with interest the exercises I was putting Prince Oscar through the other day, but I think she is always a little nervous about it. 'Are you sure Oscar is strong enough for boxing?' she asked me when I first went to Potsdam as trainer, and I had some trouble to reassure her. I was asked to tea with the royal family. A special room was reserved for me at the palace, but what rather amused me was that most of the time I had to go about in evening dress."

"As for Prince Oscar, I can only tell you that he is a pretty sturdy fellow and the kaiserin need have no anxiety about him. He weighs about 165 pounds, and he is so quick on his feet that sometimes he beats me. The kaiserin was really anxious. I think as to whether boxing was not injurious to the heart."

Jack Slim has a busy time trying to carry out Prince Oscar's impetuous demands for his presence. "One day after Christmas," said Jack, "I got a telegram telling me to be at Wildpark, Potsdam, at four o'clock. There was no train that would get me there in time, so I just took a motor, and, my, but that jigger hummed when I gave him the address. All the way the German bobbies were putting down the number of the car as we tore past them. It made me laugh. I told Prince Oscar all about it, and he laughed quite as much as I did. He speaks English better than any of his brothers; in fact, he is more like an Englishman than a German, any way."

SAM HILDRETH DENIES TALE

Was Not Refused License to Race Horses in England Because He Had Not Applied for One.

Sam C. Hildreth, the veteran American trainer who went to England recently, returned on the Lusitania, accompanied by Mrs. Hildreth and Carroll T. Shilling, the jockey who went away with him to look over the English tracks and select training quarters. Hildreth denied the report that he had been refused a license to train in England.

"Was such a report published here?" he asked.

"I wasn't refused a license," said he. "I could not be refused a license because I did not apply for one. All I went over for was to look around. There would be no use in taking out a license now, for it would expire at the end of the year. Training licenses in England begin with the first of the calendar year.

"I am going back in midwinter some time. I have not decided just when I shall ship my horses. There is no prospect of my going to France until after another season or two. It would be no use to do so except with jumpers. By the rules of the French tracks neither American nor British horses can take part except in special races. They have to be bred in France."

Good Year for Basketball.

Basketball promises to enjoy a boom this winter that it has no known heretofore. Leagues are being formed on every hand and the interest in the game has grown to large proportions. Lovers of the sport look to see it become the most popular of indoor pastimes during the cold weather.

Murphy Is After Rucker.

Charles Murphy, president of the Chicago National League Baseball club, is said to be anxious to get Nap Rucker, the star left hand twirler of the Brooklyn team, and would, it is reported, be willing to give several Chicago players in return.

Thought It Was Coffee Until Wife Told Him!

ONE day the wife of a prominent Ohio man served Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH instead of coffee for dinner.

Her husband was very particular about his coffee. She didn't say anything about the change.

What was her astonishment as the meal passed and her husband didn't discover a difference.

He simply asked for an extra cup and remarked that "the coffee" was unusually good.

For ten months he drank Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH before he knew it. And then his wife told him!

Fitch's Grains of Health

The Coffee Substitute With the Coffee Taste is the only substitute for coffee which smells like coffee—tastes like coffee—has all the coffee satisfaction—without a single bad effect of coffee.

People who dare not touch coffee, can drink all they want of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. It is good for them. Doctors recommend it.

In Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH a special high-grade blend of coffee is so combined with roots, herbs and vegetables that the caffeine is counteracted. It is a health drink! Try a package today.

Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is sold by all leading grocers. The price is 30 cents the pound package. It is ground. Ready for use. It is just as easy to prepare as coffee—but only half as much Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH is required as coffee—a teaspoonful to a cup. Therefore it really costs only half as much as good coffee.

If your grocer cannot supply you, write us, mentioning his name, and we will send you a generous sample package of Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH (enough to serve a large family at breakfast) and a booklet telling you all about Fitch's GRAINS OF HEALTH. Enclose 6 cents in stamps for postage.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Gets Promised Soap Stock.
Cincinnati, O., Jan. 9.—The sunset love affair of Percy Procter, 65-year-old Cincinnati soap millionaire, is at an end. By settling his legal and financial troubles with his pretty young wife, the Baroness von Kiltz of Menione, France, Dresden, Germany, and St. Petersburg, Russia, Procter, who went a courting at 62, is spared a court hearing exposing his love affair to the court again. The settlement came in circuit court. Through it the baroness gets a part of the $40,000 worth of soap stock which she said Procter had promised her as a marriage dowry and which she charged he had withheld.

Bucketshop Raided.
Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Acting on an indictment returned by the grand jury against M. A. McGrath and E. J. Charters, charging them with operating a bucketshop, deputy sheriffs raided the offices of these brokers, arresting them, confiscating their books and taking into custody about 14 of their customers, who will be held as witnesses before the grand jury.

Shot by Nephew.
Washington C. H., O., Jan. 9.—William Humphreys, 55, was shot in the arm and leg by William McKitterick, his nephew. Humphreys, it is alleged, threatened his nephew with a knife and the latter claims he shot in self-defense. Humphreys was arrested on a charge of making threats.

Jury Convicts Oil Men.
Cleveland, O., Jan. 9.—A jury in United States district court returned a verdict of guilty against Charles A. Sandals and A. S. Griffin, Cleveland oil stock promoters, charged with using the mails to defraud. There are eight counts against each one.

Freezes Under Barn.
Cincinnati, O., Jan. 9.—Charles Skinner, 40, who lived in an improvised shelter under a barn near Compton road, was found frozen to death. He was missed by residents in the neighborhood who had been giving him work.

Boat in Perilous Position.
Ashtabula, O., Jan. 9.—Marquette & Bessemer car ferry No. 2, Captain Rowan master, with 31 men aboard, is caught in the ice and in danger of Port Stanley, Ont., according to a wireless message received here.

Cannery Meet in Columbus.
Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—The Ohio Cannery association opened its convention here today. More than 24,000 cans of Ohio foods are on exhibition.

New Lexington Preacher Dies.
New Lexington, O., Jan. 9.—Rev. L. C. Haddox, 55, pastor of the M. E. church, died following a stroke of paralysis received in the pulpit.

"It will not do," Lestrage was stating definitely. "It should be reinforced."

"It's always been strong enough," Bailey's slower tones objected. "For years. It's not a thing likely to break."

"Not likely to break? Look at last year's record, Mr. Bailey, and tell me that. A broken steering-knuckle killed Brook in Indiana, another sent Little to the hospital in Massachusetts, the same thing wrecked the leader at the last Beach race and dashed him through the fence. Do you know what it means to the driver of a machine hurling itself along the narrow verge of destruction, when the steering-wheel suddenly turns useless in his grasp? Can you feel the sick helplessness, the confronting of death, the compressed second before the crash? Is it worth while to risk it for a bit of costless steel?"

The clear realism of the picture forced a pause, filled by the dull roar and throb through the machinery-crowded building.

"They were not our cars that broke, any of them," Bailey insisted.

"Not our cars, no. But the steering-knuckle of my own machine broke under my hands last March, on the road, and if I had been on a curve instead of a straight stretch there would have been a wreck. As it was, I brought her to a stop in the ditch. There is no other thing that may not leave a fighting chance after it breaks but this leaves absolutely none. I know, you both know, that the steering-wheel is the only weapon in the driver's grasp. If it fails him, he goes out and his mechanician with him."

Emily paled, shrinking. She remembered the road under the maples and Lestrage's laughing face as he leaned breathless across his useless wheel. That was what it had meant, then, the lightly treated episode!

"You'd better fix it like he wants it," advised Dick's disturbed tones. "Remember, he's got to drive the car Friday and Saturday, Bailey, not us."

"It's not alone for my racer I'm speaking, but for every car that leaves the shop," Lestrage caught him up. "I'm not flinching, I've driven the car before and I will again. It may hold for ever, that part, but I've tested it and it's a weak point—take the warning for what it's worth."

There was a movement as if he rose with the last word. Emily laid her hand on the arm of the chair, turning her excited dark eyes on her uncle. Surely if ever Mr. Ffrench was to meet his manager, this was the moment; when Lestrage's ringing argument was still in their ears, his splendid force of earnestness still vibrant in the atmosphere. And suddenly she wanted them to meet, passionately wanted Ethan Ffrench's liking for this man.

"Uncle," she began. "Uncle—"

But it was not Lestrage's light step that halted on the threshold.

"Why, I didn't know—" exclaimed Bailey. "Excuse me, Mr. Ffrench, they didn't tell me you were down."

He glanced over his shoulder; as he pulled shut the door Emily glanced she heard an echo, as if the two young men left the next room. Bitterly disappointed, she sank back.

"That was your manager with you?" Mr. Ffrench frigidly inquired.

"Yes; he went up-stairs to see how the new drill is acting," Bailey pulled out a handkerchief and rubbed his brow. "Excuse me, it's warm. Yes, he wants me to strengthen a knuckle—he's spoken considerable about it. I guess he's right; better too much than too little."

"I do not see that follows. I should imagine that you understood building chassis better than this racing driver. You had best consult outside experts in construction before making a change."

"Uncle!" Emily cried.

"There's a twenty-four hour race starts tomorrow night," Bailey suggested uneasily. "It's easy fixed, and we might be wrong."

"We have always made them this way?"

"Yes, but—"

"Consult experts, then. I do not like your manager's tone; he is too assuming. Now let me see those papers."

Emily's parasol slipped to the floor with a sharp crash as she stood up, quite pale and shaken.

"Uncle, Mr. Lestrage knows," she appealed. "You heard him say what would happen—please, please let it be fixed."

Amazed, Mr. Ffrench looked at her, his face setting.

"You forget your dignity," he retorted in displeasure. "This is mere childishness, Emily. Men will be consulted more competent to decide than this Lestrage. That will do."

From one to the other she gazed, then turned away.

"I—I Would Rather Be Outdoors."

"I will wait out in the cart," she said. "I—I would rather be outdoors."

Dick Ffrench was up-stairs, standing with Lestrage in one of the narrow aisles between lines of grimly efficient machines that bit or cut their way through the steel and aluminum fed to them, when Rupert came to him with a folded visiting card.

"Miss Ffrench sent it," was the explanation. "She's sitting out in her horse-motor car, and she called me off the track to ask me to demean myself by acting like a messenger boy. All right?"

"All right," said Dick, running an astonished eye over the card.

"No answer?"

"No answer."

"Then I'll hurry back to my embroidery. I'm several laps behind in my work already."

"See here, Lestrage," Dick began, as the mechanician departed, sitting down on a railing beside a machine steadily engaged in notching steel disks into gear-wheels.

"Don't do that!" Lestrage exclaimed sharply. "Get up, Ffrench."

"It's safe enough."

"It's nothing of the kind. The least slip—"

"Oh, well," he reluctantly rose. "If you're going to get fussy. Read what Emily sent up."

Lestrage accepted the card with a faint flicker of expression.

"Dick, uncle is making the steering-knuckle wait for expert opinion," the legend ran, in pencil. "Have Mr. Bailey strengthen Mr. Lestrage's car, anyhow. Do not let him race so."

Near them two men were engaged in babbling bearings, passing ladles of molten metal carelessly back and forth, and splashing hissing drops over the floor; at them Lestrage gazed in silence, after reading, the card still in his hand.

"Well?" Dick at last queried.

"Have Mr. Bailey, do nothing at all," was the deliberate reply. "There is an etiquette of subordination, I believe—this is Mr. Ffrench's factory. I've done my part and we'll think no more of the matter. I may be wrong. But I am more than grateful to Miss Ffrench."

"That's all you're going to do?"

"Yes. I wish you would not sit there."

"I'm tired; I won't fall in, and I want to think. We've been a lot together this spring, Lestrage; I don't like this business about the steering-gear. Do you go down to the Beach tomorrow?"

"Tonight. Tomorrow I must put in practicing on the track. I would have been down today if there had not been so much to do here. Are you coming with me, or not until the evening of the start?"

Dick stirred uncomfortably.

"I don't want to come at all, thank you. I saw you race once."

"You had better get used to it," Lestrage quietly advised. "The day may come when there is no one to take your place. This factory will be yours and you will have to look after your own interests. I wish you would come down and represent the company at this race."

"I haven't the head for it."

"I do not agree with you."

Their eyes met in a long regard. Here, in the crowded room of workers, the ceaseless uproar shut in their conversation with a walled completeness of privacy.

"I'm not sure whether you know it, Lestrage, but you've got me all stirred up since I met you," the younger man confessed plaintively. "You're different from other fellows and you've made me different. I'd rather be around the factory than anywhere else I know, now. But honestly I like you too well to watch you race."

"I want you to come."

"I—"

One of the men with a vessel of white, heaving molten metal was trying to pass through the narrow aisle. Dick broke his sentence to rise in hasty avoidance, and his foot slipped in a puddle of oil on the floor.

It was so brief in happening that only the workman concerned saw the accident. As Dick fell backward, Lestrage sprang forward and caught him, fairly snatching him from the greedy teeth. There was the rending of fabric, a gasping sob from Dick, and reeling from the recoil Lestrage was sent staggering against a flying wheel next in line.

The workman set down his burden with a recklessness endangering further trouble, active too late.

"Mr. Lestrage!" he cried.

But Lestrage had already recovered himself, his right arm crossed with a scorched and bleeding bar where it had touched the glittering wheel, and the two young men were standing opposite each other in safety. "You are not hurt?" was the first question.

"I? I ought to be, but I'm not. Come to a surgeon, Lestrage— Oh, you told me not to sit there!"

Lestrage glanced down at the surface wound, then quickly back at the two pallid faces.

"Go on to your work, Peters," he directed. "I'm all right." And as the man slowly obeyed, "Now will you take my advice and come to the race with me, Ffrench?"

"Race? You'd race with that arm?"

"Yes. Are you coming with me?"

Shaken and tremulous, Dick passed a damp hand across his forehead.

"I think you're mad to stand talking here. Come to the office, for heaven's sake. And, I'd be ground up there, if you hadn't caught me," he looked toward the jaws sullenly shredding and reshredding a strip of cloth from his sleeve. "I'll do anything you want."

"Will you?" Lestrage flashed quickly. He flung back his head with the resolute setting of expression the other knew so well, his eyes brilliant with a resolve that took no heed of physical discomfort. "Then give me your word that you'll stick to your work here. That is my fear; that the change in you is just a mood you'll tire of some day. I want you to stand up to your work and not drop out disqualified."

"I will," said Dick, subdued and earnest. "I couldn't help doing it—your arm—"

Lestrage impatiently dragged out his handkerchief and wound it around the cut.

"Go on."

"I can't help keeping on; I couldn't go back now. You've got me awake."

No one else ever tried, and I was having a good time. It began with liking you and thinking of all you did, and feeling funny alongside of you." He paused, struggling with Anglo-Saxon shyness. "I'm awfully fond of you, old fellow."

The other's gray eyes warmed and cleared. Smiling, he held out his left hand.

"It's mutual," he assured. "It isn't playing the game to trap you while you are upset like this. But I don't believe you'll be sorry. Come find some one to tie this up for me; I can't have it stiff tomorrow."

But in spite of his professed haste, Lestrage stopped at the head of the stairs and went back to recover some small object lying on the floor beneath a pool of chilling metal. When he rejoined Dick, it was to linger yet a moment to look back across the teeming room.

"It's worth having, all this," he commented, with the first touch of sadness the other ever had seen in him. "Don't throw it away, Ffrench."

There is usually a surgeon within reach of a factory. When Mr. Ffrench passed out to the cart where Emily waited, he passed Dick and the village physician entering. The elder gentleman put on his glasses to survey his nephew's white face.

"An accident?" he inquired.

The casual curiosity was sufficiently exasperating, and Dick's nerves were badly gone.

"Nothing worth mentioning," he snapped. "Just that I nearly fell into the machinery and Lestrage has done up his arm pulling me out. That's all."

The FLYING MERCURY

by ELEANOR M. INGRAM
AUTHOR OF THE GAME AND THE CANDLE
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WAUTERS

"It will not do," LeStrange was stating definitely. "It should be reinforced."

"It's always been strong enough," Bailey's slower tones objected. "For years. It's not a thing likely to break."

"Not likely to break? Look at last year's record, Mr. Bailey, and tell me that. A broken steering knuckle killed Brook in Indiana, another sent Little to the hospital in Massachusetts, the same thing wrecked the leader at the last Beach race and dashed him through the fence. Do you know what it means to the driver of a machine hurtling itself along the narrow verge of destruction, when the steering-wheel suddenly turns useless in his grasp? Can you feel the sick helplessness, the confronting of death, the compressed second before the crash? Is it worth while to risk it for a bit of costless steel?"

The clear realism of the picture forced a pause, filled by the dull roar and throb through the machinery-crowded building.

"They were not our cars that broke, any of them," Bailey insisted.

"Not our cars, no. But the steering-knuckle of my own machine broke under my hands last March, on the road, and if I had been on a curve instead of a straight stretch there would have been a wreck. As it was, I brought her to a stop in the ditch. There is no other thing that may not leave a fighting chance after it breaks but this leaves absolutely none. I know, you both know, that the steering-wheel is the only weapon in the driver's grasp. If it fails him, he goes out and his mechanician with him."

Emily paled, shrinking. She remembered the road under the maples and LeStrange's laughing face as he leaned breathless across his useless wheel. That was what it had meant, then, the lightly treated episode!

"You'd better fix it like he wants it," advised Dick's disturbed tones. "Remember, he's got to drive the car Friday and Saturday, Bailey, not us."

"It's not alone for my racer I'm speaking, but for every car that leaves the shop," LeStrange caught him up. "I'm not finching; I've driven the car before and I will again. It may hold for ever, that part, but I've tested it and it's a weak point—take the warning for what it's worth."

There was a movement as if he rose with the last word. Emily laid her hand on the arm of the chair, turning her excited dark eyes on her uncle. Surely if ever Mr. Ffrench was to meet his manager, this was the moment; when LeStrange's ringing argument was still in their ears, his splendid force of earnestness still vibrant in the atmosphere. And suddenly she wanted them to meet, passionately wanted Ethan Ffrench's liking for this man.

"Uncle," she began. "Uncle—"

But it was not LeStrange's light step that halted on the threshold.

"Why, I didn't know—" exclaimed Bailey. "Excuse me, Mr. Ffrench, they didn't tell me you were down."

He glanced over his shoulder; as he pulled shut the door Emily fancied she heard an echo, as if the two young men left the next room. Bitterly disappointed, she sank back.

"That was your manager with you?" Mr. Ffrench frigidly inquired.

"Yes; he went upstairs to see how the new drill is acting." Bailey pulled out a handkerchief and rubbed his brow. "Excuse me, it's warm. Yes, he wants me to strengthen a knuckle—he's spoken considerable about it. I guess he's right; better too much than too little."

"I do not see that follows. I should imagine that you understood building chassis better than this racing driver. You had best consult outside experts in construction before making a change."

"Uncle!" Emily cried.

"There's a twenty-four hour race starts tomorrow night," Bailey suggested uneasily. "It's easy fixed, and we might be wrong."

"We have always made them this way?"

"Yes, but—"

Emily's parasol slipped to the floor with a sharp crash as she stood up, quite pale and shaken.

"Uncle, Mr. LeStrange knows," she appealed. "You heard him say what would happen—please, please let it be fixed."

Amazed, Mr. Ffrench looked at her, his face setting.

"You forget your dignity," he retorted in displeasure. "This is mere childishness, Emily. Men will be consulted more competent to decide than this LeStrange. That will do."

From one to the other she gazed, then turned away.

"I—I Would Rather Be Outdoors."

"I will wait out in the cart," she said. "I—I would rather be outdoors."

Dick Ffrench was upstairs, standing with LeStrange in one of the narrow aisles between lines of grimly efficient machines that bit or cut their way through the steel and aluminum fed to them, when Rupert came to him with a folded visiting card.

"Miss Ffrench sent it," was the explanation. "She's sitting out in her horse-motor car, and she called me off the track to ask me to deliver myself by acting like a messenger boy. All right?"

"All right," said Dick, running an astonished eye over the card.

"No answer?"

"No answer?"

"Then I'll hurry back to my embroidery. I'm several laps behind in my work already."

"See here, LeStrange," Dick began, as the mechanician departed, sitting down on a railing beside a machine steadily engaged in notching steel disks into gear-wheels.

"Don't do that!" LeStrange exclaimed sharply. "Get up, Ffrench."

"It's safe enough."

"It's nothing of the kind. The least slip—"

"Oh, well," he reluctantly rose. "If you're going to get fussy. Read what Emily sent up."

LeStrange accepted the card with a faint flicker of expression.

"Dick, uncle is making the steering-knuckle wait for expert opinion," the legend ran, in pencil. "Have Mr. Bailey strengthen Mr. LeStrange's car, anyhow. Do not let him race so."

Near them two men were engaged in babbling bearings, passing ladle-fuls of molten metal carelessly back and forth, and splashing blazing drops over the floor; at them LeStrange gazed in silence, after reading, the card still in his hand.

"Well?" Dick at last queried.

"Have Mr. Bailey do nothing at all," was the deliberate reply. "There is an etiquette of subordination. I believe this is Mr. Ffrench's factory. I've done my part and we'll think no more of the matter. I may be wrong. But I am more than grateful to Miss Ffrench."

"That's all you're going to do?"

"Yes. I wish you would not sit there."

"I'm tired; I won't fall in, and I want to think. We've been a lot together this spring, LeStrange; I don't like this business about the steering-gear. Do you go down to the Beach tomorrow?"
